

Department	Computer Science
Prefix	CSCI
Number	1105
Name	Digital Tech in Modern World
Description	The course will consider the power and limitations of modern day technology, what technology can and cannot do, and personal responsibility related to digital technology. The course emphasizes active learning to enhance critical thinking, critical analysis of information gained from technical sources, and life-long learning competencies. Students use digital technology to support and enhance communication, using current productivity technologies and exploring emerging technologies.
Credit-hours	1.000 Credit hours
Lecture-hours	1.000 Lecture hours
Lab-hours	0.000
Level	Undergraduate
Schedule-type	Lecture
Prerequisite	None
Restrictions

Course-attributes

None